Ancient Rome.

HOW IT LOOKED.

Ancient Rome, even under the splendid rule of the great builder, the Emperor Augustus, never could boast quays and boulevards like Paris, parks like London, nor squares like Berlin. A congeries of hills, intersected by narrow winding valleys, and bordering on a swift, narrow river, fed by mountain streams, could never afford space for streets like Regent street, or squares like the Place de la Concorde. The Vicus Longus, according to the best modern writer on Roman topography since Papencordt, Gregorovius, and Ampere, ran between the Quirinal and Viminal hills, was only about three-quarters of a mile long, and ended in mean suburban houses. The lesser streets were narrow and short, never more than 15 feet wide; while the alleys were not more than a yard across, being, in fact, just such cut-throat passages as still intersect the Corso, that great artery of modern Rome. The enormous houses, the height of which Augustus reduced to 70 feet, were let in flats, like the eight-story buildings still existing in the Old Town of Edinburgh; and as many of the garret mountaineers threw out balconies from their windows, the lower stories were cool, but dismally dark.

AS IT LOOKS FROM THE CAPITOL.

Let us now mount the hill of the Capitol, the crest of which is lined by a double row of arcades, one above the other. This is the Tabularium of Catulus. On a high terrace to the north stands a temple of Concord; and to the south, on a lower level, a temple of Saturn. In front of the latter is the gilt Militarium, set up by Augustus as a standard for distances within the walls; behind, is the small temple to Ops; and to the left, in the corner, is the Schola Xantha—probably the office of the aedile and his scribes. Over and beyond it rise the arx and the temple of Juno. On the eastern face of this portion of the hill, and visible from the Forum, is the Tarpeian Rock, where criminals were executed and traitors thrown down headlong. At the upper end of the Forum, below the Citadel Hill, was the Comitium, the sacred quarter-deck of the whole enclosure of this open-air Westminster Hall of Rome. Here stood the tribunal of the Prætor Urbanus, as well as one of the Rostra, and a great many statues. A sacred fig-tree, under which Romulus and Remus had been suckled, was shown in this part of the Forum. Some of the boundary walls of the Comitium were adorned with fresco-paintings, that had been brought from Sparta. Near the south-western end of the Forum rose the splendid Basilica Julia, erected by Cæsar; and higher to the east was the temple of Castor. The latter stood on what at first almost seemed a spur of the Palatine Hill, but what was really a huge terrace, 24 feet high, formed of cyclopean masses of tufa and Alban stone. The steps of this temple served the purpose of rostra from which to address the people. Near this building stood the Ædes Vestæ, a little round shrine standing in a grove near the Tiber. At no great distance from the present Arch of Severus, was the celebrated bronze temple of the two-faced Janus, whose doors were closed in peace, and opened in war. Near this and the Basilica Æmilia, Augustus built his Chalcidicum, supposed to be an open space for the use of Senators, and surrounded by a colonnade. Near this was the Senate-house; and before that stood the Rostra, or columns adorned with the beaks of captured galleys.

But let us pass to the Campus Martius, the parade-ground and Park of ancient Rome. It is a vast grassy plain, bounded by the winding Tiber, intersected by the Via Flaminia, bordered with a blue horizon of gentle rising hills, to the right the Pincian, and to the left the Vatican. It was in the Campus, when there were no foundations, that the great horse races were held twice a year. Here the legionaries paraded or assembled to prepare for triumphal processions. It was also the play-ground for the robust youth of Rome; here, half stripped, they wrestled and rode, the while the skiffs skimmed down the river and the loaded barges from Ostia and the sea toiled up against the current. The war-galleys were moored at the Prata Quinctii, at one end of the Campus.

THE FORUM.

The Forum was the centre of commercial and legal business in Rome. Plautus describes the idlers, braggarts, the "straw-ball," scandal-mongers, gourmands, pretentious beggars and retiring rich men of that locality. The Via Sacra and other streets leading to the Forum were so choked with ceaseless crowds, that Augustus found it necessary to throw open a third Forum. The dandies and the fashionable loungers sought out a more retired promenade in the porticoes of the Circus Flaminius; while those who desired a ride or drive, repaired to the Appian way, just as the Roman Cardinals and nobles now frequent the road to Santa Agnese, outside the Porta Pia.

NOISE AND DIRT.

Rome itself was as noisy and dirty as London. Conflicting noises, jarring clamors, competing din, tortured nervous students like Martial, and quiet poets like Horace. In the morning there were the wrangling school-boys and scolding masters; at night the bakers, and all day long the clattering coppersmiths; the venders of sulphur jostled the buyers of broken glass, and the hoarse cooks bragging about their hot sausages, outroaring the shipwrecked mariners, the vociferating beggars, and the energetic beggars. The energetic builder, hot and hurried with his mules and porters, and his trucks of beams and stones, ran up against pompous funerals, ponderous wagons, mad dogs, and headlong swine. Such was Rome in the time of Juvenal, of Horace and Martial.

Augustus divided Rome into fourteen regions. Each region had its subdivisions, or vici. Each vicus had its little temple and Lares, its annual feasts, and its magistrates to take the census, and to command the public slaves when a fire occurred. There were about 7,000 police (seven cohorts) in Rome, who were also firemen. Augustus created twelve pretorian cohorts of imperial guards, but nine of these were cantoned outside the walls. The number of inhabitants in the vast hive of Rome is now generally allowed to have been about 2,000,000 souls, including slaves and foreigners.

ROMAN TEMPLES.

The temples in Rome, in the time of Augustus, were as splendid as the churches of the modern city. The Emperor made a patron saint of Apollo; and after his victory over Antony at Actium, erected a temple there to the Leucadian Phœbus. Propertius, who was present at the dedication of this temple of Augustus, eulogizes its splendor, which may serve as a type of what Roman temples were. The cornice of the portico was probably gilt. The columns, 52 in number, were of yellow African marble; between them stood statues of the 50 Danaides, and a figure of Danaus, their father, waving a sword. There was also a statue of Apollo sounding his lyre, and the God had the face of Augustus. Around the altar stood the 4 bronze oxen of Myron. The temple itself was of white marble. Over the pediment was a bronze chariot, representing that of the sun. On the ivory gates were sculptured the destruction of Niobe and her children, and the repulse of the Gauls from Parnassus. Inside the temple stood the statues of Apollo, Latona and Diana. Under the base of the sun god's statue, Augustus deposited the Sybilline books in gilt chests. Attached to the temple, there was a library of Greek and Latin books, where poets, orators, and philosophers recited their productions to friendly audiences. In the hall of the library stood a bronze statue of Apollo, 50 feet high.

The Pantheon was another magnificent structure of the Augustan age. It still exists in all its ancient size and magnificence. It was erected by Agrippa, the son-in-law of Augustus, 27 B. C. It probably contained only the images of deities specially connected with Rome and the Julian race. Adjoining this sacred rotunda were the public baths of Agrippa, which also, like other Roman baths, contained rooms for gymnastic exercise, and apartments for lectures, discussions and recitations.

NERO'S GOLDEN HOUSE.

Having mentioned the grandeur of the temples and the thermæ, let us now briefly describe Nero's Golden House, one of the most sumptuous of imperial palaces. The great fire 65 A. D., which lasted six days, enabled Nero to erect an enormous palace facing the Forum and Capitol. A collossal statute of the royal charioteer and fiddler, 120 feet high, stood in the vestibule. At the back of the palace was an artificial lake, on whose banks were clusters of houses to resemble small cities. The slopes of the Cælian and Esquiline hill were converted into fields, vineyards, pastures covered with cattle, and woods filled with wild beasts. The imperial domains were comprised in three porticoes, each a mile long—a circuit comprehending three out of the seven hills of Rome. This abode of the Seven deadly sins blazed with gold, and scintillated with mother-of-pearl; the banquet rooms had ceilings of pierced ivory, so that perfumes might be sprinkled from above. Nero now condescended to say "that he had at last begun to live like a man." He had engrossed two-thirds of the city, and contemplated changing its name to Neropolis. He had also formed the main idea of extending Rome as far Ostia, and bringing the sea to the old city by a canal.

THE COLISEUM.

Let us pass from the temples and palaces to the places of amusement. Of these, the Coliseum was the most stupendous. Augustus had planned an amphitheatre in the centre of the city, but was probably deterred by the cost. The lake at the back of Nero's palace furnished, when drained, a noble site for the new arena, which was 157 feet high, and calculated to hold 87,000 spectators. Vespasian began the Coliseum, and Titus finished it, at the same time as his baths, probably on the site of the house of Mæcenas. The Roman citizens were greedy for bloodshed at all times. The dedication games lasted one hundred days. There was a combat of storks, and a battle between four wild elephants. Don Cassius says that nine thousand wild beasts were killed on this occasion, and some by women. The amphitheatre was then filled with water, and horses and bulls were brought in and slain as they were swimming and wading. Vessels were then introduced, and their crews represented a celebrated sea fight between the Corinthians and Corcyreans.

Such were the glories and crimes of old Rome. When may London, the enormous, the black, the wealthy, the dismal, hope to rival its predecessor in the world's empire? When will Buckingham Palace become an Aurea Domus? When will St. Paul's match the bright and intellectual splendor of the temple of Apollo? When shall we have a theatre like the Flavian Amphitheatre?

It was the great clearing fire in Nero's reign, and the great conflagration in the reign of Titus, that made Rome a city of palaces. London lost her opportunity, and it may never return. May it never return is what we say, if it must return only by means of despotic orders such as those that are now piercing the Quartier Latin, and raraging the Luxembourg. If cities become beautiful only when Pharaohs and Domitians reign, may London ever remain mean, dirty, deafening, and dangerous.

EUROPEAN DIPLOMATISTS.—The three diplomatists who just now excite the greatest curiosity and interest in Paris are the Prince Metternich, Ambassador of Austria, the Count de Goltz, Ambassador of Prussia, and the Chevalier Nigra, Ambassador of Italy. The Count de Goltz, much the elder of the trio, is a bachelor on the other side of 60. He is the ideal of what is termed the old school, tall in person, scrupulously neat in his dress, of very dignified bearing, and with the polished manners of one who had passed his life in the atmosphere of Courts. The Prince de Metternich is tall and slender, with a broad forehead and intelligent face, wears long, flowing side whiskers of a light shade peculiar to the Germans, a moustache of the same hue, and keeps his chin closely shaved. He is about 37 years of age. The third diplomat of the trio is the Chevalier Nigra, who is also from 30 to 35 years of age. Molded under the immediate eye of the indefatigable Cavour, he is a hard worker. Like the Prince de Metternich, M. Nigra belongs to the new school of young diplomacy, which repudiates airs of affected solemnity and official stiffness, and the attitude of Œdipus before the Sphynx. His manners are those of the world, and even of a man of elegant leisure.

THE BRITISH LION COWED.—The Moniteur remarks derisively, on the neutral attitude assumed by England in the present hostilities of Europe: "When," asks the writer, in mocking scorn, "when before did Great Britain propose to stand 'neutral'—to hesitate, indeed, to throw the weight of her hitherto mighty sword into the scales, when the destinies of Europe were hanging in the balance? When before did she announce herself a passive spectator, while earth is parcelled out empire and dominion?"

THE VALLEY OF THE AMAZON.—In the lecture on the Amazon, delivered at Rio Janeiro, Prof. Agassiz said that the general impression in regard to the Amazon river was very erroneous, not only in regard to the climate of that region, which he had been informed was unhealthy, but also to its fertility. He found the valley of the Amazon uncommonly fertile, and its climate very healthy. It was his opinion that it would one day become the mart of the world, supporting in comfort twenty millions of inhabitants.

Secretaries Seward and Welles, Senator Doolittle, Commodore Radford, and others, went on an excursion on a gunboat to Fortress Monroe and Hampton Roads, on the 4th of June. It is wholly probable that they went there for the purpose of consulting with the "Fallen Chief of the Lost Cause," on the question of Southern reconstruction and Democratic restoration.

The nomination of Provisional Governor Johnson, of Georgia, as Minister to Bogota, will, it is said, be followed this week by two other Provisional Governors to important positions. It is not probable that they will be confirmed by the Senate, as Holden cannot take the test oath, and it is doubtful about Johnson.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

THURSDAY MORNING, AUGUST 9, 1866.

Selling or Giving Liquor to Minors.

In Wisconsin it is now a violation of the law for minors to enter a billiard saloon or place where liquor is sold.—Ex.

We call the attention of our Legislators to the above, and would suggest some such provision on our own Statute Books. It is obvious that nothing can be learned in such places as will materially benefit our youth, and, on the contrary, much will be learned having a tendency to lead them into a life of depravity and wickedness. In our town, boys may be seen in the saloons, playing cards for the whisky, with the gravity of old "sports," and the difficult feat of "turning jack from the bottom" seems to be the highth of their juvenile ambition. If there was a penalty against their entering such places, it might better their condition, and could not "worse" it much.

We clip the above from the Jacksonville Sentinel. We quite agree that "such places" are not fit resorts for our youth, and that what they may learn there will have "a tendency to lead them into a life of depravity and wickedness."

But we also venture to object to any more legislation on the subject until we see some disposition manifested to enforce that already on the statute book. It is too much the fashion now-a-days, whenever any good soul sees any practice or conduct subversive of good morals, to assume that there is no law on the subject, and insist that one shall be made forthwith.

On page 774 of the laws of Oregon, we find the following section, which, if fairly enforced, would prevent "boys" from "playing cards for whisky" in or out of a saloon:

> SEC. 14. That if any person shall sell, give, or cause to be sold or given, any intoxicating liquor to any minor under eighteen years of age in this State, without first obtaining consent of one of such minor's parents or guardians in writing, except for medical or mechanical purposes, such person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not less than six months, or both, at the direction of the court. A justice's court has jurisdiction of the crime herein defined.

If the editor of the Sentinel, will call attention to this law, passed October 21, 1864, and endeavor to elevate the sentiment of the community to the point necessary to its strict enforcement, we think he would work more effectively than in calling for more legislation.

If further legislation is found necessary, it might be as well to begin with the guilty parents who neglect their duty to their children and society by permitting those for whose training they should be responsible to haunt groggeries and "play cards for whisky."

The press has a duty to perform in this matter, and we are glad to see the Sentinel giving it attention. But the great necessity upon these subjects is not more legislation, but the execution of the laws we already have. Let the press strive to bring to bear upon district attorneys, grand juries, justices of the peace and others who are charged with seeing that the laws are enforced, a wholesome, determined public sentiment, which will animate, and compel, if need be, these persons to do their duty, and take care that the statutes we already have do not remain a dead letter. We have plenty of law, and more lawyers. Our great need is certain and vigilant execution of the laws we have. If our officers will not do this, little good will it do us to pile one dead letter statute upon another. The people must be educated and awakened to a proper sense of the necessity of allowing no man to violate their laws with impunity, and of permitting no officer who connives at such violation, or fails to bring the offender to justice to have their countenance or support at the polls or elsewhere.

President Johnson is latterly an extremely strict constructionist. He claims to be the especial champion and defender of the constitution—of its spirit as well as letter. How well does he earn the title? The constitution provides that the President "shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint" certain officers of the United States. This provision makes the Senate's consent necessary, except as to cases of vacancies occurring during the recess of Congress. If the Senate reject a nomination that makes an end of the appointment. A. Johnson, Dictator, has, however, appointed to the Assessorship of Internal Revenue at Philadelphia, O. B. Sinoker, who was three times rejected by the Senate. The vacancy occurred long before the recess of Congress, and not "during" the recess. As to the filling of that vacancy, the constitution plainly intends that the President and the Senate shall act. The Senate's voice is as necessary as the President's. The President had nominated three times and the Senate had rejected as often. By the plainest meaning of the constitution, Sinoaker could not be appointed, because a co-ordinate appointing power had pronounced against him. The President might have nominated some other man whom the Senate would agree to and thus have filled the vacancy before the recess occurred. He chose not to do it, but to wait till Congress adjourned and then to appoint a thrice rejected man, to a vacancy which did not occur during the recess a vacancy which he could constitutionally fill, only "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate." If this be a strict construction, or in any sense obedience to the plain spirit, of the constitution, we fail to see it.

This action of the President most palpably indicates his determination to be the appointing power, in spite of Senate or constitution. If he can thus defy the will of the Senate, by refraining from appointing while Congress is in session and as soon as the recess occurs, appointing whom the Senate had rejected, the clause of the constitution above quoted becomes a mere nullity, the Senate is no longer known in connection with the appointing power and the will of a headstrong President is the only law. How closely does A. Johnson, Dictator, stick to the letter and spirit of the constitution?

The Herald says that the self-chosen delegates who have taken it upon themselves to represent Oregon in the Philadelphia Convention without inquiry whether Oregon wants to be represented there or not, have as much reason to appoint themselves delegates and appear at Philadelphia in the name of the people of Oregon as Horace Greeley had to cast the vote of this State at the Chicago Convention in 1860. It then asks with a sneer if "the Republicans (of Oregon) ever repudiated his (Greeley's) acts!" Truly enough, what wonderful similarity there is between the two cases! The only difference is that in the case of Greeley, he had the proxies of gentlemen who were duly appointed by the Republicans of this State to represent Oregon in the Chicago Convention; while those who have assumed to represent this State at Philadelphia on the 14th instant, have not conferred with any portion of the people, were not chosen by any party in Oregon, and therefore act without authority from anybody. Greeley was duly appointed to act for the Republicans of Oregon at Chicago, while "S. Seymour" in proposing to appear at Philadelphia acts entirely on his own account. Nobody can be more absurd than the Herald editor when he tries. In the language of Mr. Bumble his "folly is as brazen as alabaster." As Mr. "S. Seymour" represents him at Philadelphia, will he inform us who Mr. "S. Seymour" is? On inquiry we think it would appear that his other name is J. R. Doolittle.

PACIFIC RAILROAD.—By the 5th of July the Pacific Railroad was completed from Omaha to a point 135 miles west of that place, and within 18 miles of Fort Kearney. The track is being laid at the rate of nine miles per week. It is expected that the road will reach Denver City within a year.

FROM WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Our regular Olympia correspondent sends us the following items, under date August 5:

The new mail contractors, Granger & Davis, have bought out the old line of stages from Olympia to Monticello. They immediately raised the fare to the old price, $15; at which "the traveling public" feel somewhat indignant.

The town authorities enforced the Sunday law "generally" on one of the saloons this week. To evade the law, the saloon keepers allowed their customers to enter at the back door. Complaint was made by the bar-keeper of the other saloon—had the defendants brought before the justice and mulcted in some $30 fine and costs.

A few days ago a gentleman entered one of our dry-goods stores to make a purchase, when the two enterprising clerks both came forward to wait upon him, each desiring the honor. As both could not, they soon came to words, and at last to blows, about it. Meanwhile, the gentleman took a seat, calmly looked on, and awaited the result, which soon ended in two bruised heads. Complaint for breaking the peace of the town was made, and they were brought before a justice. One of them acknowledged his guilt. The other was questioned by the justice, when he answered: "Ish pe rusht as guilty as he," meaning the other clerk: "if he's po guilty, Ish po guilty." Consequently a few dollars costs settled the matter.

On Monday, two horses with a wagon belonging to the Bush boys (mulattoes) started on a run up Main street. At a short distance the wagon was run into a tree standing by the sidewalk and completely wrecked. A more total ruin of a wagon was never seen. The horses were soon stopped without further damage.

Governor Pickering returned on the McNear from Scagit river, without proceeding up to Mt. Baker. Another attempt will made by the English gentleman that was with the party.

Hon. A. A. Denny, Delegate, is expected here from Washington in a few days.

It is understood that Secretary Evans will remain and attend the Philadelphia Convention.

A war of words between a servant man and the public printer, concerning the mail matter of Secretary Evans, has become town gossip this last week, affording amusement to outsiders and a local notice in the Tribune.

The Tribune says: "As the Josie McNear was nearing Victoria the Mate, in passing forward was knocked overboard by a steer. A thorough wetting was the result."

The Seattle Weekly of July 30th says: "A riot occurred on board the bark Jenny Pitts, a few days ago, while lying at Port Orchard. It seems that the first and second mates got into a difficulty, and had a fight, when the former overcame the latter. The steward then took the matter up in behalf of the second mate. The first mate went aft and got a pistol, which the steward away from him, beating him sweetly with it, and then throwing it overboard. The disturbance then subsided."

We are informed that a floating Whisky Battery and Dance House has been erected on Puget Sound, and that it is the intention of the commanding Pimp to lay siege to all the different ports on the Sound, (Port Madison not excepted). We hope the people will give them a warm reception.

Our readers will doubtless recollect that during the last session of the Legislature, a bill was passed appropriating $600 for the purpose of building a road from Skagit River to Lake Chelan, distance some 40 or 50 miles, provided the inhabitants interested in the construction of the road furnish an equal amount of money, which we are informed they have done, or nearly so. Mr. Kellogg, of Snohomish, who is soliciting subscriptions for that purpose, informs us that he has succeeded in raising most of the money, and there is no doubt but operations will be commenced immediately.

A new road has just been completed from Port Madison to Port Blakely. Mr. G. A. Meigs, of Port Madison, took the matter in hands and opened the road to within a few miles of Port Blakely. The Supervisor at the latter place, Mr. David Livingstone, then completed it.

At about four o'clock on last Saturday afternoon, the alarm of fire was heard. It proved to be the residence of Judge Ross. A general rush was made for the place of the disaster, a line was formed from the house to the beach, buckets of water passed from man to man, and in a short time the conflagration was stopped, without having done very serious damage, though the roof and upper part of the building were badly burned.

FROM CANYON CREEK.

The following extracts from a letter from Mr. Waldron of the Exploring party sent out to prospect Canyon Creek, is from the Columbian:

I beg to make you the following report of the proceedings of our party of five men.

We left this place on the 21st of June and reached Hixon's creek on the 26th instant. Of course we found it necessary in the first place to saw lumber for sluices and to construct a ditch to bring water on our claim. Owing to the scarcity of all kinds of tools the latter work occupied us ten days, although only one-fourth of a mile in length. The original ditch made by Mr. Hixon's party had, in his absence, become completely filled up. Owing to the presence of snow and ice on the ground, we found it almost impossible to keep our new ditch in order, and having left the water running during one night in a break which occurred, I found in the morning prospects of $1 to $1 25 to the pan.

We therefore commenced work in that spot and in a space of ground about 10 by 25 feet, in less than a day's work we washed out $70.

The other work which we had done had yielded well, and our whole results amounted to $270.

Estimating the actual number of days' work to realize this, we found our pay amounted to $17 per day to the man. Under favorable circumstances and with hydraulic pipe, with our present prospects, I think the ground will pay fifty dollars a day to the hand. When I left, the "face" of our claim was about six feet high and paid from the surface down.

The Blue Lead Company, of seven men, under the management of Mr. Shepherd, joining us on the upper side, have not yet commenced washing. Their dirt prospects from three to five bits to the pan. They are taking in their ditch twenty feet higher than ours, and will probably have it completed in about eight days.

The Go-a-head Co. are about half a mile above the Blue Lead Co., and have struck a prospect of four bits to the pan on slate bed rock. Up to this company the whole of the bed rock consists of a rather soft sandstone, and it is my opinion that it is not solid, but that a second layer of gravel will be found beneath it.

These are all the companies at present located.

Specimens of gold-bearing quartz are to be met with on all sides. We have a few specimens with us in which the gold is visible in every part. Several of the veins are apparently well defined, and will in my opinion eventually form the most persistent and valuable leads of gold in the country.

In conclusion I can only say that I have the utmost confidence in the prospects of the creek.

FROM BIG BEND.

The Victoria Chronicle of July 30th, has the following:

The latest news from this locality was received last night. It is reported that a man known as "Black Hawk" has struck a rich prospect in the bank on French Creek. The claim had been abandoned by its former owners. He took out seventeen ounces in one day. Mons. B. Dallis has been badly injured in his claim on French Creek by some timber falling on him. Seventy-five ounces of B B. dust has been received at Yale.

UNION CANDIDATE IN POLK COUNTY.—Of Jas. B. Riggs, Union candidate for State Senator in Polk county, the Statesman says:

> Mr. Riggs is a middle aged man, a prosperous farmer, a solid, substantial citizen, an old Oregonian, thoroughly identified with all the interests of the State, a man of sound practical sense, in no sense of the term a politician; a sound and reliable Union man, of the highest character for honor and fair dealing, and a man who has no enemies, and against whom his most violent opponent cannot say aught. He is in all respects worthy and deserving of the confidence and support of every good citizen, and will be triumphantly elected over his Copperhead opponent, Dr. Jeffers. Although it is in the midst of harvest, and the farmers are all busy, yet we hope that no Union man will neglect so important a duty as coming out to the polls at this special election and casting in a vote for Mr. Riggs. Let him have the hearty and enthusiastic support of every Union man.

We have known Mr. Riggs for several years and can endorse all that the Statesman says of him. We trust that the Union men of Polk will give him an undivided support. Let him have every Union vote in the county. Polk county is true to the Union when she has an even chance, and no hissing Copperhead should be permitted to go into the State Senate with her consent.

The Herald for a few days has manifested unusual concern for A. Johnson, Doolittle & Co.—spending all its space in defending them. In this work its editor is now employing all the abusive scurrility which he poured out against them while they stood true to their party. His method of praising "Moses" is to vituperate the "Radicals." Thus he now defends A. Johnson with the very weapons with which he used to assail him. In the department of gross, vulgar invective, the Herald editor is unrivalled. Alone and unaided he could run a successful tilt against Paracelsus' whole brigade of stink-pot flingers, marshaled in the order related by Swift. A dirtier fellow for Johnson's dirty work could not have been found in Oregon.

The Herald says in substance that the aims of the new party now forming are identical with those by which the Union party was guided during the rebellion. Then why in the name of consistency do you now support principles which you opposed bitterly from the beginning of Mr. Lincoln's term of office until his fiendish assassination by members of your party? If Johnson, Doolittle & Co. are the only true representatives of the Union party of the war, and still maintain the principles they held then, tell us how it happens that you opposed them at that time, but pronounce for them now.

When a peaceable and unarmed Convention meets in New Orleans and the civil authorities head an infuriate mob in a murderous attack upon it, killing and wounding over a hundred defenceless people, the President telegraphs to an inferior officer of the State, authorizing him to call upon the military for aid to support the civil authorities. This is in close imitation of Horatio Seymour's infamous address to the negro-murdering mob of New York, when he called the blood-begrimmed rioters "My friends."

So scarce have the supporters of "my policy" become in Lane county, that the Journal calls the only one left the "Lone Star" of "my policy."

JOHNSON AND DAVIS.—A letter from Washington, whose author is indorsed by the Cass county (Michigan) Republican, in which it is published, as a gentleman holding a high official position in Washington, contains the following statement:

> Nothing will be done to Jeff. Davis but to liberate him. I have reason to believe that President Johnson is in his power, and that Davis has in his hands, or in those of his counsel, Charles O'Connor, a letter written by Johnson at an early day, proposing to join the rebellion, provided he should have a seat in the Confederate Cabinet. You can, upon this hypothesis, account for the fact that although since December last Johnson has been fully and officially acquainted with the evidence, in detail, proving that Davis was an accessory before the fact in the murder of Lincoln, he has prevented his trial for that crime. This I know.

The Marysville Appeal says that not one of the Union papers of California will follow Johnson into the Copperhead den through the Philadelphia Convention. The same may be said of Oregon.

The Indians on the plains can't agree even with each other. Some of the tribes are at war. One hundred warriors of the Utes lately crossed the North Platt on an expedition after the Sioux. Pity that they couldn't exterminate each other all round.

Masonic.—A regular convocation of Portland Royal Arch Chapter No. 3, will be held this evening. Companions in good standing are invited to attend.

MOUNT HOOD.—In a recent issue of this paper, an account of the successful ascent of Mount Hood, the wonder of travelers, was given Man is largely indebted to mountainous scenery for the sublime and savage, or beautiful and picturesque in nature. Some peaks are so lofty as to appear constantly enveloped in the clouds, piercing as it were, the very sky itself This continent contains ranges of mountains which are the theme and admiration of the scholar, painter, traveler, or even casual observer. The following are some of the highest mountains on the globe, mentioned by various geographers, together with their location

	FEET
Kunchinjinga, Himalaya range India	28,178
Tupungato, Andes range, South America	22,450
Mount Kenia, Mountains of the Moon, East Africa,	20,000
Mount Hood, Coast range, Oregon	18,000
Mount St. Elias, Coast range, Russian America	17,900
Mont Blanc, Alps range, Sardinia.	15,750
Mount Shasta, Coast range, California	14,390
Great St. Bernard, Alps range, Switzerland	11,080

In addition to these may be added the height of some of the principal volcanoes on the earth, whose names are as familiar as "household words" to the student:

	FEET
Cotopaxi, Andes range, South America.	18,875
Popocatapetl, Cordilleras range, Mexico	17,884
Mount Hecla, Iceland	5,110
Vesuvius, South Appenines, Naples	3,932

It is somewhat rare to find an insulated mountain but we have an instance in that of Mount Egmont situated in New Zealand, Australasia, which is 8,839 feet high. And if we divide mountains into classes, making those above 10,000 feet of the first class, be ween that and 4,000 feet of the second, and from thence to 2,000 feet of the third Some have put Mount Hood down to 12,000 feet in their books but we believe our figures are nearer correct. Of late, landscape painters of note have been here and made this mountain peak a subject for the production of a most beautiful work of art. Bierstadt sold his to A. T. Stewart, the merchant prince of New York, for $20 000 Later F. A. Butman, of San Francisco, has furnished the art world with a specimen from his studio, and it is now on exhibition at Shanahan & Dufrene's, corner of First and Morrison streets. Within a few days they have had some beautiful photographs of it executed by Ellsworth & Cardwell, 89 First street, in sizes suitable either for the parlor wall or an album which they offer for sale at a rate within the reach of all. At this season of the year Mount Hood, with its cap of snow, is one of the most beautiful sights on the American continent, and eventually will be a point of attraction to tourists from every part of the civilized world.

OUR COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS.—The events of the present day are every day demonstrating the correctness of views frequently presented through this paper, concerning the importance of Oregon commercial affairs, and go very far in confirmation of the expressions made for several years past by the gentlemen who compose the Oregon Steam Navigation Company, and well as to exceed the expectations of that class of old line monopolists, who now place "opposition" at the head of their shipping posters The Oregon Steam Navigation Company have labored energetically and persistently to build up for this country safe channels through which the business of transportation inland might speedily be effected and to realize how far they have been successful one need but to take a look at the immensity of their improvements From Portland for a distance of seven hundred miles on the Columbia and Snake rivers, they employ steamers which would be a credit to many older communities, counting wealth by millions against the thousands of this. Had the steamship companies who should be considered co-workers of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company in this matter, done fairly by us, what might not Oregon now be considered, in a commercial point of view? In spite of all unfavorable circumstances, the freighting and passenger business of this city has wonderfully increased since last year. Twelve months ago the shipping of this port consisted of five barks and two steamships, making about sixty trips per year This year we have four steamships, alone making at the rate of ninety-six trips per annum and the total number of arrivals will fall but little short of one hundred and twenty, including sail vessels. In place of the five barks in the trade with San Francisco we now have three of that class of vessels in direct communication with Honolulu. This steady and remarkable growth cannot fail of being very conspicuous to all parties; and it presents a striking commentary on the "independent" situation we have attained being, as we are, indebted to no element in California for our success, but even have been obliged to fight against all the combined and factious elements of that State that could be mustered against us, from the California Steam Navigation Company, and others higher in authority which it would not be judicious to mention at this time, down to the rider for a bit-letter pony express.

PORTLAND AS A SUMMER RESORT.—It is well enough for those people who can do no better to regale their imagination with the poet's word pictures of rural scenery and life or to gaze upon the artist's sketches of nature's grandeur and beauty, but here we have no use for such second hand tastes of the glories that beautify the world, as an hour's ride from the city of Portland will present to the eye scenes of natural beauty on the earth and in the heavens which no Arcadian fields or Italian skies can surpass Our country and our climate is just now very beautiful In fact it is always so when compared to other sections of this coast especially, but now the comparison exhibits it with decided advantage, and it is the common remark of Portlanders, and Oregonians, who have been to the favored resorts of other localities that this is decidedly the most preferable summer resort they have found. The most noble of mountain scenery beautiful green hills and dales clear flowing rivers bright valleys and fields of grain, orchards over burdened with ripening fruit, grazing flocks and herds, together with a moderate temperature of weather the average mean being about 65°, should be material enough and of the right class, to render this a favorite retreat or place, when compared with those of California Recent visitors to the metropolis of our sister State found what it was to be blown, dusted, or chilled to death in 'Frisco, and by running out to Suscol there taking the cars for Napa and then stage to the White Sulphur Calistoga, or Geysers, received the perspiring touches of a hot awful hot region Thermometer at 110° and 115° in the shade and nothing cooling to drink they got their ice from distant portions of the northern coast We can attest the truth that Portland is adapted to all the purposes of a summer resort and if some of our monied men will build a spacious hotel here to be conducted on first principles, we would not be afraid to guarantee that Californians could be easily persuaded to fill it during the summer season to such an extent as would more than offset the exodus from Oregon in winter

CARRIAGE MANUFACTURES.—On the 18th of March last in referring to our industrial pursuits, we mentioned several facts relating to the increasing business of manufacturing carriages and buggies which has grown to some considerable importance upon this coast since the beginning of the war being one of those branches of mechanical pursuits which has arrived at a successful point in competition with Eastern mechanics In order to show that the business has kept pace in this city with the advancement made in other sections of the coast, we need but to refer to the new manufactory of Messrs W E. Cooper & Co. at the corner of Second and Morrison streets This firm now have an establishment which will compare very favorably with any in the country and their work is equal in point of style and finish, to any like establishment in the United States This may seem to be saying a great deal but the facts will justify us It is with some pride that we refer in this manner to home mechanics knowing that an inspection of their productions will bear us out in the assertions We have yet to see an imported buggy in Oregon any better than those made at home The price may be a little less for first cost, but every thing considered, after all home work is really the cheapest This has been tried The new works of Messrs Cooper & Co consist of buildings two and two and a half stories high 33 by 100 feet. The Repository is at present well filled with excellent vehicles, and the wood-workers, blacksmiths, painters and trimmers are busily employed in making more, of all styles, from a Concord coach to a light sulky.

INSPIRATION.—The press of California are now discussing pro and con on the subject of the infusion of ideas through the aid of wine The subject was introduced by the Dramatic Chronicle's notice of a paper called the National Temperance Advocate which a contemporary had said was ably edited The Chronicle thought there was no such thing extant as an ably edited total abstinence organ and asserted that as a general thing, temperance journals were as insipid as a Dashaway cocktail to which proposition the Layero Times assented and then comments as follows We once knew of a paper published by three men who never indulged and the concern died of intellectual constipation—much to the relief of a community who placed more good sense than hypocritical morals The genius of the world has been matured under the inspiring influence of a little wine Art, science, poetry, politics all in wine own their brightest creations to a moderate use of the juice. The Napa Register which is proverbial for good sense, says there is some truth in the squibs and then adds It is certainly true that wine sharpens the intellect as we happen to know both by experience and observation But it imparts too much keenness for practical use—a razor edge, that will not stand every day wear Too often wine drinking imparts brilliancy at the expense of sound sense a brilliancy that after all is valueless and ineffective as the glitter of the fragments of a broken mirror Where one paper dies from "intellectual constipation" caused by abstinence, a hundred perish through the drinking habits of their publishers Wine like electricity is good in its place beyond a doubt, and has its uses in the universe, but the writer or publisher who relies upon it for his daily inspiration might as well attempt to boil his tea-kettle by flashes of lightning "

CIRCUIT COURT.—E. D SHATTUCK, Judge. Several decrees were made and entered upon records, August 8th in vacation .In the case of C S Silver, administrator of the estate of Finice Caruthers deceased vs Robert J Ladd and A J Knott it was decided that the certificate for patent to Elizabeth Thomas, by the register of the Land Office, was issued without authority of law, she not being entitled to the right of holding land in Oregon under the provisions of the donation laws of Congress Patrick Hogan vs. Wren, Tidd Wyman, et al. suit dismissed.

DISCHARGED.—John Anderson, accused of assaulting Peter Sykes, (colored) was discharged upon examination before Justice Hoffman yesterday The evidence went to show that no difficulty would have occurred had the "gentleman of color" conformed to the rules of the restaurant in which Anderson was employed the former having entered the saloon and seated himself at a table among white people with his hat on which he was requested not to do.

FROM COLVILLE.—Messrs Applegate, Rynearson and Carson returned from Colville on Tuesday night, and will very soon proceed to Nesqually These gentlemen are employed on behalf of the United States in examining the Hudson's Bay Company posts, preparatory to being examined as witnesses, as to their value condition etc. Mr Applegate reports that the crops in the region of Colville are very fine and extensive.

USES OF ASPHALTUM.—Messrs Perry & Company are about to lay a double brick wall under the pavement in front of, and throughout the cellar under the new brick building of Mr C M. Carter, on Front and Alder streets filling the interstice with asphaltum, and putting on a floor of the same material, to render it proof against water

REAPER TRIAL.—There will be a trial of the Kirby Reaper, with a new self raker at the oat field of Mr Lloyd Brooke, west of the Portland Academy, to-day at ten o'clock a m at which time the public are invited on behalf of Capt Hopkins, to attend and witness for themselves the superior qualities of this machine.

HAULED OUT.—The famous steamer Julia was hauled out at the O S. N Company's ship yard on Monday last, and is now receiving a thorough overhauling Her hull was found O. K., and she will be made No 1, before she takes to the water again

STOCK SHIPMENT.—The steamer John H Couch, Captain Snow, made a special trip to the Cowlitz yesterday with a cargo of live stock.

TROTTING.—As will be seen by advertisement, a trot takes place over the Multnomah course on Saturday next.

FARM AT AUCTION.—On to-morrow Mr Hall's farm will be sold as will be seen by reference to Mr Auctioneer Richardson's advertisement.

DUE OR NOT DUE.—No steamers had arrived up to 11 o'clock last evening from San Francisco.

There is a [illegible] for Robert Moore at the telegraph office.

FROM VICTORIA

We extract as follows from our Victoria files to August 2d

NEW STEAMER.

On Saturday the 28th ult., a new side wheel steamer—the Isabel—was launched at the yard of J W Trahey in Victoria west. The following are the dimensions Length over all, 145 feet; extreme breadth, 24 feet, depth of hold 9 feet 2 inches, estimated tonnage 275 register Her engines which are 80 horse power, are of English manufacture having been imported recently by the Eastern Chief

EMANCIPATION DAY

The colored residents of the city celebrated the anniversary of West India emancipation yesterday, by holding a pic-nic on the grounds of Mr Gibbs, James Bay Speeches were made and the assemblage enjoyed themselves "right merrily"

FROM NEW WESTMINSTER.

The steamer Alexandra arrived last night at 8 o clock, with some 20 passengers and $260 300 in treasure $158-300 being for the Bank of British North America, and $102,000 for the Bank of British Columbia

BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA

The thirtieth annual meeting of this institution was held on the 5th of June last in London From a copy of the Directors' Report handed us by J G Shepherd Esq we make the following extracts "After deducting charges and Income Tax and making ample provision for all bad and doubtful debts, the net profit for the past year amounted to £77,877 6s. 3d. which compares favorably with the amount earned in 1864 of £72,509 10s. 3d, and in 1863 of £61 413 14s. 7d It will be gratifying to the proprietors to be informed that the business of the Bank for the present year is proceeding satisfactorily and that, notwithstanding the financial crisis which has been so generally and so severely felt in this country no serious losses are apprehended, and that the profits for the first quarter of the year are in excess of those for the same period of last year As already stated the net profit for the year 1865 amounted to £77 877 6s. 3d. This enables the Directors to pay, in addition to the half-yearly dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, a bonus of 1 per cent. This will leave the sum of £7 877 6s 3d. to be carried to the rest, which, including that addition amounted on the 30th of December, 1865 as per annexed statement to £140,471 5s. 4d. or deducting the bonus now declared—say £10 000—to £130,471 5s 4d.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH

The telegraph line is now completed to Fraser Lake and the chopping party are some way ahead The work is being pushed on vigorously and it is expected the line will be stretched to Rocher de Boulier, on the Skeena, by the 1st of August. Parties are exploring the Skeena river and it is hoped the Stickeen can be crossed a short distance from the coast Over 250 pack animals are employed transporting wire and supplies About 100 pack animals and the same number of beef cattle left Quesnelmouth on the 4th inst., for Fraser Lake The boats have already made two trips to Forts Fraser and Stuart

MESSAGE TO LONDON

It was proposed yesterday to send a congratulatory message over the Atlantic Cable to London, and $75 was contributed in an hour or two to pay for its transmission the California State Telegraph Company having generously offered to forward it free to New York Last night however, it was ascertained that the cost over the cable would be $450 so a further collection was made this morning and the message sent on to its destination His Excellency the Governor liberally gave $25 towards the cost, with the offer of more if necessary. The following is the message

VICTORIA, July 31 —To the Lord Mayor of London:—The infant Colony of Vancouver eight thousand telegraphic miles distant, sends cordial greeting to Mother England LUMLEY FRANKLIN, Mayor

FATAL ACCIDENT

A canoe capsized on Sunday afternoon near the light house in Esquimalt harbor There were three Cowichan Indians and a squaw in the canoe at the time The men were drunk and nothing was seen of them after the accident The woman was seen by Mr E W Fisher and brought to shore, but subsequently died An inquest was held yesterday, and a verdict returned of accidental death

THE ASCENT OF MOUNT BAKER.

Dr Brown and Mr E T Coleman returned by the Jenny McNear, having failed to accomplish their intention to ascend Mount Baker. They inform us that they proceeded up the Skaggit river with Judge Darwin of Washington Territory, and accompanied by Indians, a distance of about 40 miles, when they reached the confluence of a stream called the White Stone or Tukullum River which flows from the base of the mountain. It became necessary here to procure guides but the tribe of Indians who reside there named the Koma, numbering some sixty strong became apprehensive that the white men were making an attempt to set foot on their soil and declined to let them proceed Finding remonstrance useless, the party retraced their steps. The country in the vicinity of the mountain on that side appears to be very impracticable on the Whatcom side however it is said that there is a practicable approach to the mountain by water, where the natives will offer no molestation

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.—The stomach is the fountain-head of scores of diseases which infest the human system Indigestion bad enough per se, generates diarrhœa, dysentery, faintness, vertigo palpitation of the heart general debility, &c. Get rid of it then at once by going through a course of

DR HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS,

A palatable and refreshing preparation which as surely relieves all complaints of the stomach and its dependencies, as the sun lights the snow A course of the medicine may not perhaps be necessary the bottle frequently accomplishes a complete cure Sold by druggists and dealers every where jy20 HODGE, CALEF & Co. Front St

The reason why so many die with Consumption is because they neglect to use the proper remedy in season When the system is first attacked with a cough oppression of the chest, or seated pains in the breast, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will cause the phlegm to raise, heals the irritated parts and restores the system to health For sale by

They make the weak strong the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St Croix rum For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle

Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U S Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene and our signature on a fine steel plate side label See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in Bulk, is an impostor Any person imitating this bottle or selling any other material therein whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U S Law and will be so prosecuted by us We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c, who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen merchants &c., is incredible The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority They are sold by all respectable druggists grocers physicians, hotels, saloons steamboats and country stores

SOME OF YOU CAN'T, AND WE PITY you. You have tried every remedy but the ONE destined by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure, but is really the VERY BEST remedy ever discovered for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefitted by the surprising curative powers of and with one accord give it their unqualified approbation. We now address ourselves to all who are unacquainted with this, the great Panacea of the age, for the healing of all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, assuring you that has cured thousands and it will cure YOU if you try it.

This invaluable medicine is pleasant to the taste, soothing, healing and strengthening in its effects, entirely free from all poisonous or deleterious drugs, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances.

"Listen! there are voices talking,"
Calmly still she strove to speak,
Yet her voice grew faint and trembling,
And the red flushed in her cheek.
"It is only the children playing
Below, now their work is done,
And they laugh that their eyes are dazzled
By the rays of the setting sun."

Fainter grew her voice and weaker,
As with anxious eyes she cried,
"Down the avenue of chestnuts,
I can hear a horseman ride."
"It was only the deer that were feeding
In a herd on the clover-grass;
They were startled and fled to the thicket,
As they saw the reapers pass."

Now the night arose in silence,
Birds lay in their leafy nest,
And the deer couched in the forest,
And the children were at rest:
There was only a sound of weeping
From watchers around a bed,
But Rest to the weary spirit,
Peace to the quiet Dead!

Wails of the Dead-Heads.

The New York Legislature last session passed a law prohibiting the free pass system on railroads in that State. By a provision of the law all passes were taken up on and after the first of May. The law must have been heavy on such editors as got caught away from home. We understand that a number of these wretched creatures accumulated at the principal points along the line of the New York Central Railroad, principally at Utica and Syracuse. Their passes playing out, and having no money, of course they had to stop over until they could hear from home.

The Union Telegraph Company kindly permitted them the free use of the telegraph wires to send dispatches home. A friend forwarded to us some of the dispatches sent from Utica, where a large number of country editors were "stuck." Through the benevolence of some of the citizens, the "Soldiers Home," which had been vacant for months past, was fitted up for the accommodation of the impecunious editors until money could be forwarded to them. Some of them, rendered temporarily insane by the decapitation of "deadheads," had to be quartered in the Lunatic Asylum.

One editor telegraphs to his partner:

"Send me some money. Five dollars will do if sent immediately. Don't suspend the paper in consequence if you can possibly avoid it."

Another, rendered savage and profane, telegraphs his foreman:

"Sell that office stove and send the proceeds. We don't need it in warm weather. Discharge the devil.

"P. S.—Give our Legislature h—l for this."

One poor fellow, who is caught a long way from home, it being a small town on the Illinois river, nearly despairs of getting back again. This is his dispatch:

UTICA, N. Y., May 13, 1866,
BLUE LION TAVERN.

"DEAR WIFE: Sell my tother clothes for what they will bring, and remit at once. Had my linen duster for supper, and my spare shirt will have to go for lodging. May be able to make a light breakfast on a German silver comb and a pair of shears that I chanced to have with me. Don't know when I shall be able to get home. It will depend a good deal on the walking. Don't marry for a few months; there is a bare possibility of my getting back. SIMON."

St. Lawrence County, (N. Y.) editor telegraphs his assistant editor:

"If my letter isn't printed, cut out the puff of the New York Central Railroad. Give them something about 'Swindling Monopoly,' 'Dangerous Roadway,' 'Rotten Bridges,' &c. Send me ten dollars."

The editor of Podunk Stuffed Club telegraphs his partner:

"DEAR SAM: Forward me at once all the money you have, even if it is five dollars.

"P. S.—The editor of the kiteling sheet whose puny efforts to rival the Stuffed Club have so often excited our derision, the cringing tool of the opposition, whom I threatened to horsewhip if he dared to address me, has just refused me the loan of half a dollar. Ye gods! Review his disloyal course during the war in a column leader, double leaded. Make it warm as you can.

"P. S.—Bring down the Stuffed Club with all its weight on the head of that giant monopoly, the New York Central. PHIL."

A Buffalo editor, who had his pass taken up at Schenectady, attempted to make his way home on foot. He got as far as Syracuse when he gave out (his shoes gave out some two or three days before, and he had hoofed it along barefooted), and he dropped by the wayside. He is performing the remainder of the journey on board of a bullhead canal boat. Walking from Schenectady to Syracuse on the railroad (he said he never was passed so many before—every train passed him), he has obtained some interesting statistics. He says there were nine thousand four hundred and sixty-two ties laid between these two points, only one hundred and thirty-two of them showing signs of decay. There are one thousand seven hundred and one telegraph poles, all being peeled of their bark except two hundred and thirty-one.

The Atlantic and Great Western Railway Company were even more strict than the Central in enforcing the new law. If an editor was caught with a pass and no money, the pass was taken up and the train stopped, while the editor was put off—frequently in the woods and miles from any habitation. There are over a hundred editors wandering in the woods on the line of the Atlantic and Great Western Railway in New York State. One poor fellow from Cleveland, supposed to belong to the Herald, wandered about for several days in Salamanca, inquiring for the State Line; but was so confused that he was totally unable to say what line. He was last seen applying a leather-cased pocket flask as a compass to find out where he was. The flask was inscribed "Fairbanks," supposed to have been a present from the scale man.

Companies are being organized for the purpose of searching out the lost editors, and restoring them to their distracted families.

A large number of the [illegible] who live in Eastern New York, and who had been West, are stopped at the Pennsylvania line, unable to get any further. They are anxiously "watching and waiting over the border" for succor. It will require a whole string of suckers to go around. The Atlantic and Great Western Company have very kindly extended to them the use of their water tanks to lodge in.

The following dispatch has passed over the wires from Cattaraugus county, N. Y., to the editor of the Posey County (Ind.,) Blower:

CATTARAUGUS COUNTY POOR HOUSE,
May 15, 1866.

Editor of the Posey County Blower:

SIR: An emaciated and partially demented creature was picked up in the woods in this vicinity yesterday who had apparently been wandering for some days without food. He could give no account of himself; but on searching him the following articles were found in his pockets, to-wit:

One lead pencil, greatly worn.
One pencil sharpener, patent.
One pair wooden pocket combs.
An annual pass on the Posey County Plank Road.

And a letter from the Posey County Blower, endorsing him as an attache of that paper, and requesting railroad superintendents to extend the "usual courtesies," &c.

He is quiet and inoffensive, for the most part, but is seized with an occasional frenzy, in which he calls for paper, and writes furiously until exhausted. I can only make out a few sentences, such as "Mr. Editor"—"broad guage a failure"—"Atlanticroad"—"higher'n Gilderoy"—"crush it out"—"united press"—"not what we thought it was," &c., &c. If you know anything of this wretched person, please inform me at once.

JOHN SMITH,
Sup't Cattaraugus County Poor House.

One of the Railroad Conductors on the New York Central was shown a pass, with the name of a railroad man attached to it. "Is not that name sufficient?" inquired the anxious passenger. "There is only one name in the United States that is of any account with me just now," replied the Conductor. "What is that?" was the instant inquiry. The Conductor deliberately unrolled a greenback, and pointing to the right hand lower corner, said: "F. E. Spinner."

A RELIC OF IRVING.—A relic that should be dear to book-readers in this country is passing away. The Newark Journal states that some changes which fresh street improvements in that city will necessitate, will remove forever that famous little summer-house, the dilapidated remains of which are just within the bounds of Passaic street, and which, when gone, will leave no landmark to indicate the spot where the author of the Sketch-Book sat in the cool of the evening, to pen the editorials summed up in the Salmagundi. A full-sized model of this structure was shown in the Sanitary Fair held in New York two years ago. It is about fifteen feet across, twenty feet to the top of the turret, octagonal shape, built of free stone, stuccoed and ornamented in an expensive manner. It is situated about one hundred yards back from the water's edge, in a delightful ravine, where once was a lake, surrounded by clusters of willow, sycamore, cedar and other evergreens.

BURIED BEFORE BIRTH.—The Duke of Alba, the brother-in-law of Napoleon III., is a short, little man, who has something icy about his whole manner. Small and weak, his face displays an alabaster-hue, which gives him a ghost-like aspect. In Spain the story is current that the Duke was buried before he was born. When his mother was enciente with him she was taken so desperately ill that all the attempts to restore her remained fruitless. The duchess died far away from Madrid, at a chateau which had always been her favorite residence. She was buried in the family vault; and, as is the custom of the Spanish nobility, several valuables, among others her rings, were put into the coffin. The treasures which had been left to oblivion with the Duchess aroused the cupidity of some ruffians; they broke into the vault on the night following the funeral, robbed the dead woman, and would not leave the coffin till they had plucked a flashing diamond from the finger of the corpse. The diamond was on the little finger and would not come off. This gave the body-snatchers the truly cannibal idea of cutting the finger. The pain aroused the apparently dead woman. She came to her senses, sat up in the coffin, and by her unexpected awakening put the robbers to flight. When they departed they forgot to close the vault. The Duchess found sufficient strength to quit her coffin and return to the chateau, where she was at first taken for a ghost, and a priest was called in to exorcise it; but as he was unable to banish the spectre, the people in the chateau gradually began to believe in her corporeal existence. The Duchess recovered and gave birth to a boy, who has never lost the deathly pallor which he brought into the world with him.

ANECDOTE OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN.—The following anecdote of President Lincoln is told in a letter from Panama, which appears in the Athenæum. The writer is referring to the war between Chile and Spain. I asked the Chilean Admiral (who is an Englishman, and came out with me) why the Chileans did not try to get the greatest of American Republics to help them. He thought it was no use trying, because a couple of years ago he was sent to Washington to get the permission of Government for the purchase and export of two vessels, at that time contraband of war. President Lincoln received him with the usual affability; and while Seward was reading the Chilean state paper, Abraham Lincoln said: Admiral, I must tell you a little story. When a young man I was very anxious to read a book which belonged to a neighbor of mine. "Neighbor," I asked, "could you lend me this book?" "Certainly," he replied, "you can come here and read it whenever you like." As the book was rather a bulky one I thought this was rather an odd way of lending it to me, but I let that pass. A short time afterwards he came to me. "Lincoln," he said, "can you lend me your bellows?" "Certainly," I replied, "here they are; you can come here and blow away as much as you like." And that is just exactly the case now, Admiral; you can come here and blow away as much as you like, but we cannot let you take the ships away.

HOW THOMAS JEFFERSON TREATED AN OFFICE-HOLDER WHO SLANDERED CONGRESS.—In 1802, when St. Clair was Governor of the Northwest Territory, he delivered an address to the Convention assembled at Chillicothe to prepare a Constitution for what is now the State of Ohio. In that address Governor St. Clair used the following language:

"For all internal affairs we have a complete legislature of our own, and they are no more bound by an act of Congress than by an edict of the first consul of France."

This coming to the knowledge of Jefferson, then President, he directed Madison, then Secretary of State, to address the following reply to Governor St. Clair:

"SIR: The President, observing in an address lately delivered by you to the Convention at Chillicothe an intemperance and indecorum of language toward the Legislature of the United States, and a disorganizing spirit and tendency of every evil example, and grossly violating the rules of conduct enjoined by your public station, determines that your commission of Governor of the Northwestern Territory shall cease on the receipt of this notification."

What ought to be done to Johnson for his low abuse of Congress?

THE GREAT EMIGRATION FROM IRELAND.—The Pall Mall Gazette, in a late number, thus gives the English view of the Irish Emigration:

Although labor is scarce and wages high in every part of Ireland, the exodus to America is rapidly on the increase. From Cork alone an average of fifteen hundred embark weekly, and from the other Irish ports the migration to the New World, by way of Liverpool, is proportionably rapid. The master wish of every Irishman belonging to the middle and lower classes seems to be to leave his country forever, an object which the pater familias seeks to attain by sending forward across the Atlantic his hardiest and most promising sons and daughters, provided with all the money he can raise, to earn more for the transport of the rest of the family. In this way not only an immense amount of labor, but also an immense amount of specie is daily lost to Ireland, and acquired by America. The young and the industrious, the flower of the population, depart—the old and the feeble and the sickly remain behind, awaiting impatiently the transmission of money to follow. It is deplorable that this should be so, but so it is.

The ex-rebel Gen. Magruder, writes from Mexico to a friend in New York, praying intercession, with the United States Government in his behalf that he may return to this country without fear of arrest. He says: "The Imperial Government has gone to destruction and has no money, and we have to get away from here. Many have already left. Price and myself, and some others, are still here; but we are compelled to look out for some other place to go to. There is no hope for anything more here." Whisky has become so costly in this country during the last few years, that Magruder may only find his miseries increased by his return for want of means sufficient to procure his ordinary articles of diet.

THE TRAY FOR LOW.—Some boys were playing cards, recently, in a hay mow in the country, during a terrible storm of wind, rain and thunder. When the war of the elements was at its hight, a tree near the old barn was struck by lightning, and at the same moment a severe blast of wind upset the upper story of the barn and tumbled the card players to the ground, amid a perfect wreck of boards, beams and rafters. The first thing that was heard above the din of tempest was the voice of one of the boys, as he crawled out of the debris, holding fast to the cards, "Remember, boys, I played the tray for low." That chap will be a Lieutenant General, if we ever have another war.

A handsome young gal was set up with one night by a noble young specimen of the true American, with a scissors in his vest pocket—I mean a dry-goods clerk; and the young gal's mother hearing suthin pop, rose from her couch under the impression that her eldest boy was holding a wild revel on the root-beer in the west room. But, on opening the door, she diskivered it was kissin' and huggin' which awakened her from her peaceful repose. "My darter, my darter," this fond parink did cry, "O, that I should live to see this doins' in my own house!" "I know, mother," this sweet village maiden did unto her mother quick reply, "that it is improper, but it is so orful soothin'."

POLITICAL MOVEMENT IN THE SOUTH.—Governor Hamilton, of Texas, has drawn up a call for a Convention of Union men throughout the South, to meet at Washington on the first week of September. Signers are being obtained, and letters sent South to invite the co-operation of the Union men there.

Governor Hamilton calls the August Convention, to be held in Philadelphia, another rebel invasion of the North, to form an alliance with the Democratic party for the re-instatement of the rebel leaders in their former political power, to the utter exclusion of the Union men who have been persecuted, oppressed and ignored for the last few years.

NOTABLE DAMSELS AND THEIR AGES.—Charlotte Cushman will shortly celebrate the sixty-fourth anniversary of her bith. Fanny Kemble her forty-ninth year. Kate Bateman is twenty-four years old. Julia Dean is thirty five. Madame Celeste is sixty-four. Mrs. John Wood is thirty-six. Julia Bennett Barrow is forty one. Adah Isaacs Menken, twenty-seven. Avonia Jones, twenty-three. Kate Reignolds, twenty-seven. Mrs. J. H. Allen is twenty-two. Madame Henriques is twenty, and is the youngest "leading lady" on the stage. Parepa is thirty-eight. Miss Hossmer is twenty-six. Maggie Mitchell is thirty.

"FORTY THIEVES."—As it is said that Beriah Brown and A. W. Randall, the P. M. General, both belonged to the moral reform society in Wisconsin known as the "Forty Thieves," we shall expect a big puff for Johnson in the Portland Herald, for the discretion exercised in the appointment. We move for a new sett of locks on the mail bags.—Appeal.

A poet in a Nebraska paper ends a poem thus:

"Well, such is life. Whom the gods love
Die young. Whom they hate, live and prosper,
And are elected delegates to Congress
From the several Territories."

CHANGES IN THE MONEY ORDER SYSTEM.—The Postoffice Department at Washington has put the new law of Congress, relating to the money order system in force, commencing with the present fiscal year. The working of the system is changed in several respects, and orders of $50 and under are now sold, while under the old system the maximum was $30. The fees for money orders have also been changed; orders from $1 to $20 being now issued at 10 cents, and over $20 to $50, inclusive, at 25 cents. Under the old law it was necessary for a duplicate to be issued. An affidavit with stamp was first required, for which the party had to pay, as also a fee for the new certificate. Under the new law postmasters can administer oaths free of charge, and the certificate is also furnished without cost, the only expense to the party being the five per cent. revenue stamp. Besides these changes, quite a number of other objectionable features have been removed. On the 2d of August 360 additional money-order offices, mostly in the South and West, will be put in operation. The system is daily increasing in popularity among all classes.
